

National Career Sites

Corey is ready to begin his job search. He'll start with a national career website, which is a good choice for a general-purpose search. Two of the most well-known career websites are Monster.com and Careerbuilder.com.

Each one lets you search for job listings around the United States.

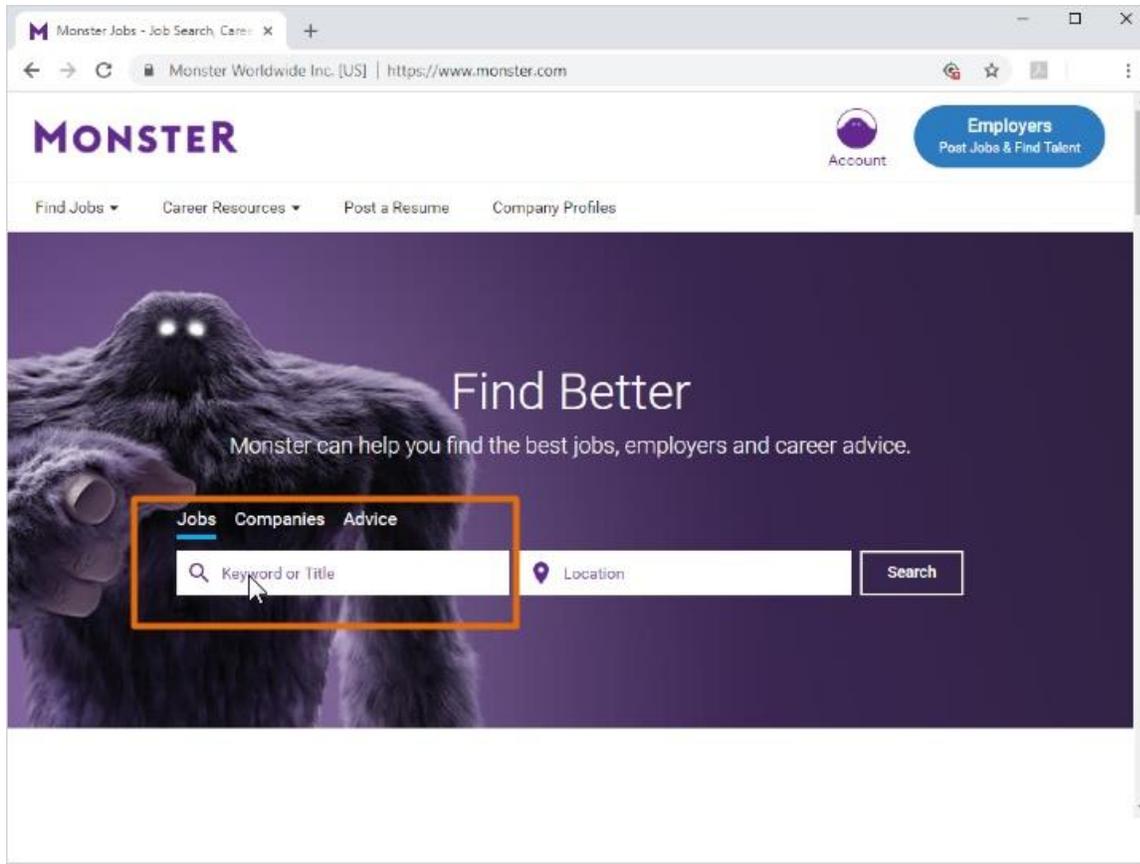

They also have an assortment of other tools, like resume builders, advice columns, and profiles of different types of jobs.

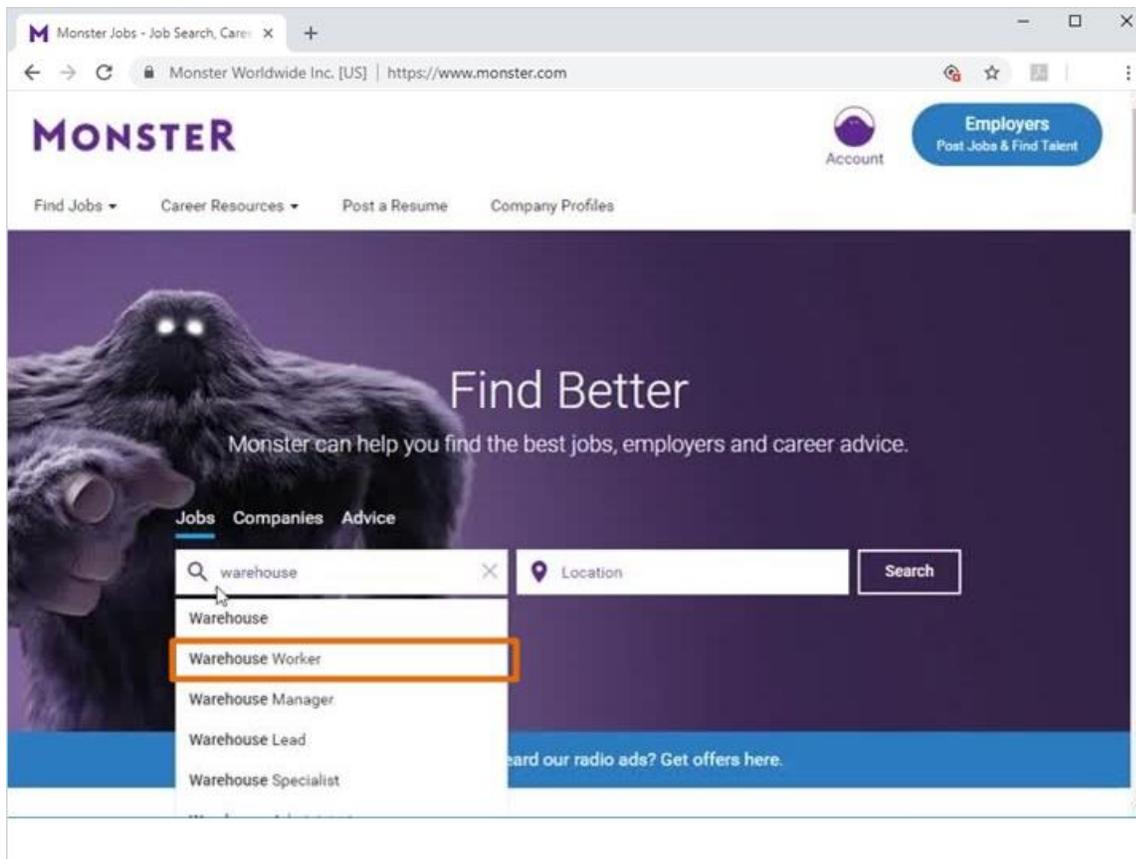

Corey starts by going to the Monster.com website, typing “monster.com” into the web browser address bar.

He could also search for it using Google or another search engine. On the Monster.com home page, there are several search boxes. Corey can type in a job title, keyword, or company name in the search boxes on the left.

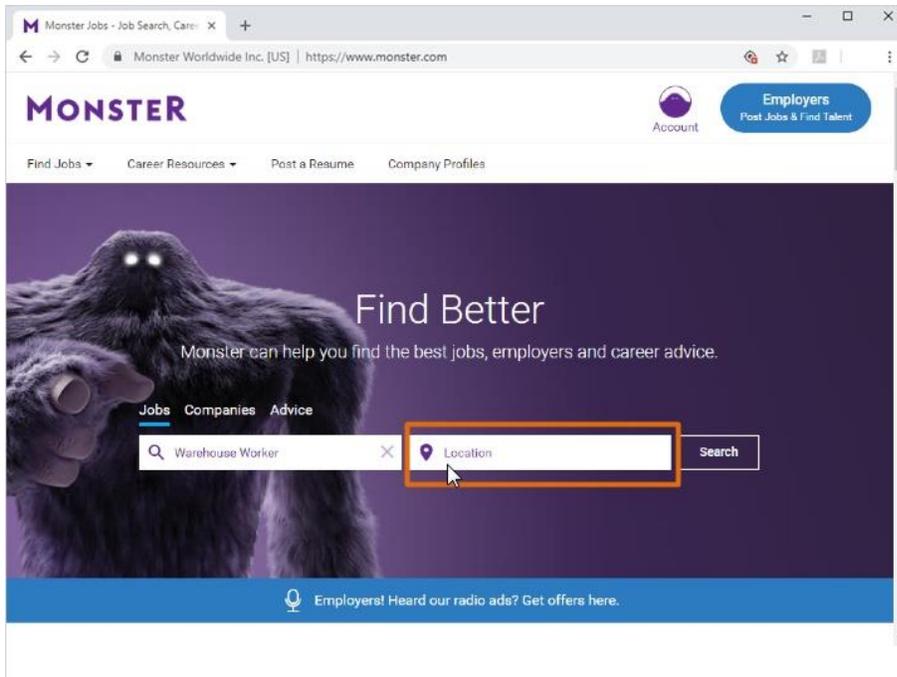

He can also type the location where he wants to find a job in the search box on the right.

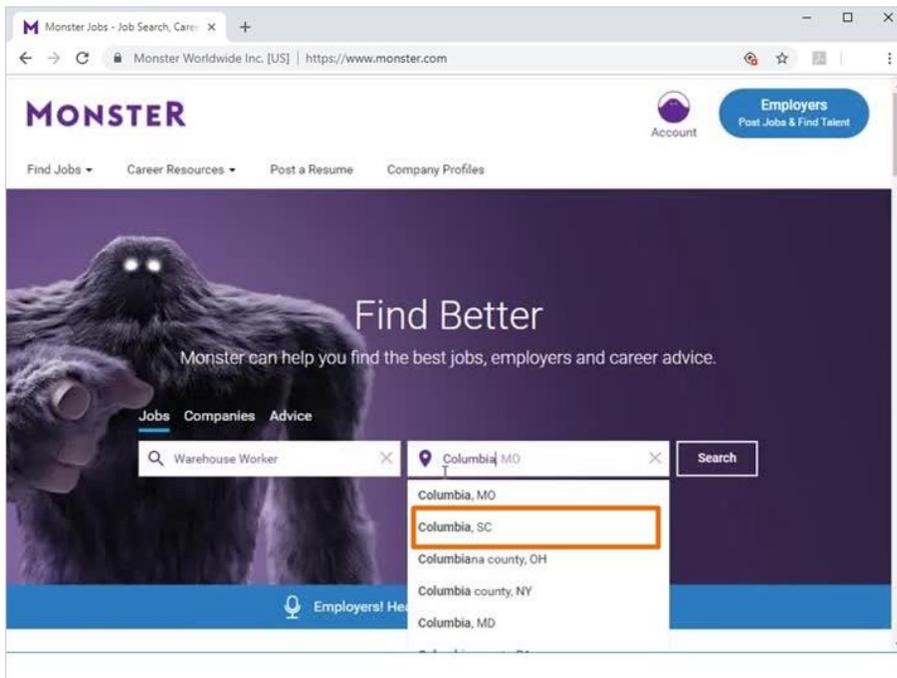

Corey wants to search for “warehouse worker” jobs.

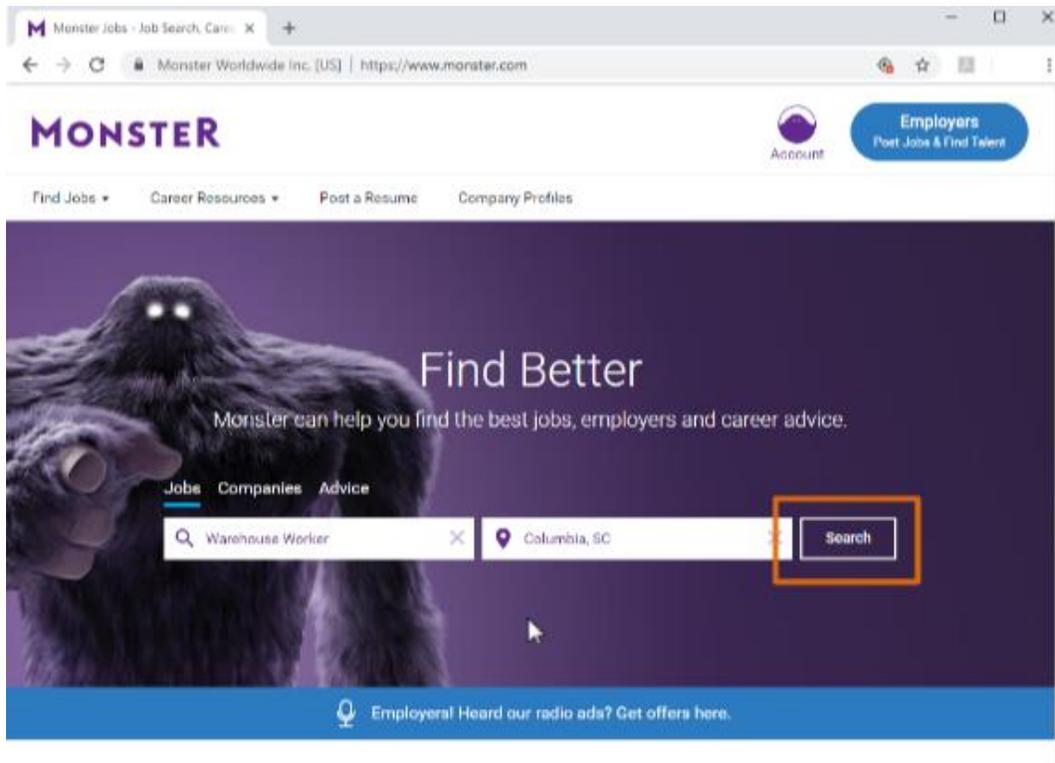

He'll type "Warehouse worker" into the job title search box. As he starts to type, suggestions come up that match what he's typing. He can just click the term he wants in the list.

Next Corey types in the location where he wants to work.

As he starts to type in “Columbia, SC” it also comes up in the suggestions list, and he can click it to select it.

Once he's filled out the search boxes, he clicks on Search.

Employers can pay to have their jobs show up in search results, so it’s important to look closely at your results.
